Law Enforcement Partners:

The U.S. Department of Homeland Security would like to hear from you about the homeland security issues that concern you and your community.

We are in the process of completing a major strategic review of the Department's programs and priorities, and will deliver our finished product – the 2018 Quadrennial Homeland Security Review – to Congress in December 2017. As part of our review, we are inviting members of the law enforcement community to participate in the online "My DHS Idea" campaign.

These are some of the important missions members of our Department perform every day:

- Counterterrorism;
- Border security;
- Immigration enforcement;
- Trade enforcement and facilitation;
- Drug interdiction;
- Disaster preparedness and response; and
- Cybersecurity.

What homeland security issues do you care about? What areas should the Department of Homeland Security prioritize? What are the most pressing risks facing your community and the nation as a whole?

Using the IdeaScale platform, you can post your own ideas to address the homeland security challenges that are important to you and your community, comment on other people's ideas, and vote on the issues and approaches that you think are the most important for the Department to consider. This interactive format allows everyone on the site to see the issues that are most important to other participants, and which ideas generate the most interest and support. The Department's Office of Policy staff will moderate and contribute to discussions on an occasional basis, incorporating key ideas into the strategy review process as appropriate.

You can find the link to the DHS IdeaScale site at <https://homelandsecurity.ideascale.com/>. Registration is quick and easy.

Best Regards,
