(MILWAUKEE, Wisconsin) More than 400 campus public safety experts will convene in Milwaukee June 23 – 26 at the Wisconsin Center for the 59th Annual Conference and Exposition of the International Association of Campus Law Enforcement Administrators (IACLEA). Attendees will address pressing public safety topics including campus protest, visa enforcement on campus, sexual assault, and de-escalation techniques. The Marquette University Police Department is the host institution and has collaborated to plan the conference and host special events during the gathering.

The 2017 IACLEA conference will draw delegates from ten countries: Barbados, Canada, China, Grenada, Ireland, Netherlands Antilles, Scotland, South Africa, the United Kingdom, and the United States.

“Today’s campus public safety departments must be prepared for any crime, large or small, that occurs in any community,” said IACLEA President Randy Burba, chief of public safety at Chapman University. "The IACLEA Annual Conference brings together leaders with similar problems to seek common solutions. And our exhibitors display the latest in cutting-edge technology to keep our campus communities safe."

"It is an honor to host law enforcement leaders from across the world to learn about recent trends, the latest technology, and the most pressing public safety topics," said Marquette University Police Chief Paul Mascari. "We look forward to collaborating with our peer officers so that we can continually learn and adapt to protect our ever-changing environment."

Marquette University is a Catholic, Jesuit university located near the heart of downtown Milwaukee, offering 11 nationally and internationally recognized colleges and schools for 11,300 undergraduate and graduate students. Marquette will provide a tour of its campus and police department to international delegates.

National law enforcement experts will give inspirational presentations during General Sessions.

Friday, June 23, 2017, 3 pm: Keynote speaker Frank DeAngelis, former principal, Columbine High School (sponsored by Guard911). Mr. DeAngelis shares his story from the events to the aftermath and relays the leadership lessons he learned in the focus of an international firestorm.

Saturday, June 24, 2017, 8:30 am: Keynote Speaker Lt. Brian Murphy (ret.) from Oak Creek, Wisconsin. Lt. Murphy survived 15 gunshots responding to a massacre at a Sikh temple. He will paint a vivid picture of the threat of workplace violence and how we can be better prepared and equipped to fight against it. (sponsored by Guard 911)

Monday, June 26, 2017, 3 pm: Chief Jane Castor (ret.) Tampa Police Department, Leading Through Tragedy. After two officers were killed early in her tenure as chief in Tampa, she led the hunt for the assailants—while planning the slain officers' funerals. Chief Castor will also discuss the Pulse Nightclub shooting.

Attendees have the opportunity to participate in the Law Enforcement Torch Run 5K to benefit Special Olympics Wisconsin, Sunday, June 25, 2017, at 6:30 am. The course covers downtown Milwaukee and Marquette's gorgeous campus.

Nearly 100 companies will display cutting-edge products and technology at the expo Friday night and Saturday, June 23 and 24. IACLEA thanks its conference sponsors: 5.11 Tactical, Allied Universal, AppArmor, CASE Systems, Inc., CriticalArc, D. Stafford & Associates, FEI Behavioral Health, G4S Secure Solutions (USA), Inc., GALLS, Guard 911, Lexipol, ProPhoenix Corporation, RapidDeploy, Securitas Security Services USA, Inc., ShotSpotter, STANLEY Security, Superion, Symbol Arts, The Riseling Group, Vigilant, and Weldon, Williams & Lick, Inc.
